DEDICATION

To the ones who were silenced, shamed, or exiled for thinking differently—
This is for you.
To my parents—
May truth reach you louder than fear ever did.
And to the manipulators—
You don't own our souls. Not then. Not now. Not ever.

EPIGRAPH

"You nullify the word of God for the sake of your tradition."
— Matthew 15:6

Author's Note
Chapter 1: The Original Lie
They sold us God, but kept the power. Truth got rewritten in gold ink and fear.
Chapter 2: Faith or Fear? The Psychology of Control
They preached peace while planting fear. Control disguised as holiness.
Chapter 3: The Pulpit and the Power Trip
Ego in robes. Microphones used like chains. Not all shepherds protect the flock.
Chapter 4: Family as a Weapon – When Belief Divides Blood
They turned love into loyalty tests. And faith into a wedge between kin.
Chapter 5: Facebook Prophets & Digital Puppets
Clicks over conviction. "Amen" buttons used to manipulate minds.
Chapter 6: You Don't Need a Building to Find God
God don't live in walls. He's in breath, breakage, and the streets.
Chapter 7: Letters to My Parents
Love writes what the mouth couldn't say. Pain writes what silence covered up.
Chapter 8: How to Deprogram — Breaking the Mental Chains
Faith don't need fear to function. Let the mind unlearn what the soul always knew.
Chapter 9: Reclaiming the Soul — What Real Faith Looks Like
No guilt. No games. Just spirit meeting spirit, free and unfiltered.

Chapter 10: The Final Stand — I'm Still Here
They tried to erase me in God's name. But I walked through the fire — and brought the matchbook.

FOREWORD / AUTHOR'S NOTE

"They Tried to Own My Soul—But I'm Still Here."

I didn't write this book for likes, followers, or fake claps from religious puppets. I wrote this because something had to be said. Because too many of us are getting played—by a system wearing God's name like a mask.

This is not about hating God. Don't get it twisted. I believe in a higher power—more than ever. But what I don't believe in? These spiritual institutions that hijack people's minds and make them slaves in the name of "faith." These manipulative pastors, priests, and preachers who speak like they're holy—but act like they're above the people they're supposed to serve.

They got my parents, man. That one hurts. They used the Bible and the church walls to turn them against me. They planted fear, guilt, and fake promises in their hearts. And now I feel the distance. I feel like my own blood can't see me clearly anymore—like religion blurred their vision of their own son.

This book is me fighting back.

I don't care if I'm called a rebel, a lost soul, or a heretic. I'd rather speak my truth than live quiet while the people I love get swallowed by a system built on control.

This is for every person who felt silenced in church.
For every soul who was made to feel "not enough."
For the ones who got kicked down instead of lifted up.
For my parents—if you ever read this, know I love you. I just need you to wake up before it's too late.

This isn't just a book.
It's a bullet through spiritual chains.
It's a middle finger to fake prophets.
It's my soul, unchained.

Let's break free.

—Francis Louie

Chapter 1: The Original Lie

They told us God lived in a building. They told us salvation was behind a pulpit. They told us our soul was only safe if we followed their script.

That was the first lie.

This chapter is not about denying God. It's about exposing how His name was taken and turned into a leash.

The Setup: God vs. Religion

God is real. That divine energy, that higher force, that presence that sits with you in silence—that's real. You feel it when you cry alone and someone deep inside tells you to keep going. You feel it when you look at nature, when you see your mom smile, when your soul finds peace for no reason.

Religion? That's a system.

It has rules, buildings, robes, routines, and leaders who stand above people and say they speak for God. That's not God—that's control.

The original lie is making people believe that God and religion are the same thing. They're not.

Verse Breakdown: The Misuse of Hebrews 10:25

"Do not forsake the gathering of the saints"
Hebrews 10:25

How they use it: They say, "See? The Bible says you have to go to church. If you don't, you're disobeying God."

The truth: This verse was written to early Christians being persecuted, scattered, scared. The message was: "Don't give up on each other." It wasn't about mandatory church attendance. It was about unity, not obligation.

But pastors twist this into pressure. If you miss church, they say you're backsliding. They count your attendance like it earns points with God. That's manipulation.

Spiritual Blackmail: Using Fear to Control

They say, "If you leave the church, you're leaving God." They say, "If you question the pastor, you're disrespecting God's servant." They say, "If you don't give your tithe, you're robbing God."

That's spiritual blackmail.

Imagine someone saying, "If you don't call me every day, you don't love me." That's not love—that's toxic. And yet religion does it all the time.

The moment faith becomes a fear trap, it stops being faith.

Weaponizing Obedience: The Misuse of Ephesians 6:1

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right."
Ephesians 6:1

How they use it: Parents are told, "Your child must obey you, or they're disobeying God."

The truth: Obedience in the Lord means within love, respect, and truth. Not blind submission to manipulated authority. If your parents are being controlled by fear-based religion, this verse doesn't justify that.

We honor truth—not abuse disguised as faith.

When Religion Divides Families

You ever notice how religious systems divide homes?

One family member doesn't attend church? Suddenly they're the black sheep. The lost one. The one who needs to be "prayed for."

But what if the one who left actually found God beyond the walls? What if they saw through the game?

This is happening all over the world. And it's how religion keeps power: it isolates truth-tellers and labels them rebels.

But rebels built revolutions. And God never said, "Stay silent when truth is burning your chest."

The Truth They Don't Preach

God is not insecure. God doesn't need weekly validation. God doesn't need your money to move in your life. God is not sitting in a building waiting for you to dress up and sing before He listens.

He's already in your soul.

They won't preach this, because if you knew that, you wouldn't need them.

Final Word of Chapter 1

The original lie was saying that without them, you can't know Him.

But here you are. Still breathing. Still searching. Still connected.

You don't need permission to speak to God. You don't need a pulpit to find purpose. You don't need chains to prove devotion.

You are already enough.

This is just the beginning.
